July 26, 1941

In accordance with national defense (financial) regulations, in Great Britain, on and after July 26, banks are prohibited from engaging in business transactions of gold and bonds connected with Japan without, permission from the Exchequer. Relevant measures are being taken in the various areas of the British Empire.

Furthermore, it is reported that the Dutch Government in London keeping contact with the Dutch Government authorities in Batavia, are discussing plans for similar measure.
